John Alexander Dowie, the preacher who boldly proclaimed himself Elijah, died yesterday morning at 7:40 o'clock in Zion City, Ill., while dying he denounced people with his old time vigor and ordered the guards to throw out disturbers; he turned Zion City which has many thousands of people and sociadistic industries valued at $28,000,000——Harry K. Thaw yesterday issued a statement denying that there is any estrangement between his family and his chorus girl wife and that instead of separating from her he loved Evelyn better than ever, District Attorney Jerome is preparing to vigorously discredit the testimony of Thaw's wife when the court meets tomorrow for the eighth week of the trial——It turns out that Millionaire Leonidas Preston who died so mysteriously while at the telephone in the Hotel Cumberland, in New York, last Thursday, had taken prussic acid and died while his partners in business were in the hotel on their way to his room to consult him about notes for thousands of dollars which he had forged, Preston left a note saying he had been insane a long time——In Northern Wyoming the range war continues between the cattle men and the sheep men, the cattlemen yesterday killing 4,000 sheep which they claim were being grased on their range——A Superior Court at Evansville, Ind., yesterday rendered a decaim were being grazed on their involving Presbyterian union——In Savannar last night Mrs. Sallie Freeney shot and instantly killed W. P. Harrell who had gone to her house to collect rent due him by the woman ——New York markets: Money on call nominal, time loans dull and strong; spot cotton steady 11.45 cents; flour quiet but firmly held; wheat firm No. 2 red 84 elevator;; corn steady, No. 2, 57 elevator; oats steady, mixed 48; turpentine steady 76 to 76 1-2; rosin steady, strained common to good 4.45 to 4.50.

District Attorney Jerome asked one of those alienists, "What causes brain storms" Well, it looks like calico is one of the principal causes.

"Money talks," it is said, but the $173,000 stolen from the sub-treasury in Chicago is probably in a position where its voice has never been heard up to this time. It is stated that the shortage may read $500,000..

It is stated that one-third of the real estate in San Francisco since the earthquake has been purchased by Japanese. With President Roosevelt's assistance, the Japs probably think there is no reason why they shouldn't own the town.

A contemporary notes the fact that in New York a few days ago a man who cannot speak German married a German woman who cannot speak English. Some people may think this will prevent them from chewing the rag, but it must be remembered that they can make faces at each other in the same language.

The Clarkton Express mentions that a teachers' meeting could not be held at Elizabethtown because of bad roads. There is absolutely no telling how bad roads retard the development and progress of a county in more ways than one. The people ought to realize that by this time. It would be difficult to estimate what bad roads cost the farmers each year.

Report comes that a man in Idaho has discovered a hole in the ground that is 8,000 feet deep. In the North Carolina Senate a few days ago Senator Buxton declared that some of his enemies are trying to put him in a hole, but he warned them that it would take a mighty big hole. The Senator is a huge man, but he must admit that the Idaho hole would be his size.

Col. Sidney C. Tapp has launched in Atlanta a magazine entitled "The American Republic." The Star has received the third number of the Colonel's magazine, which is styled "A Magazine of Protest." The articles are on the severe and radical order, and the editor wades into various men and things considered by him to need some whacks from his Damascus. As a writer of vigorous English and denunciative, Col. Tapp delivers the goods.

George W. Perkins, former vice president of the New York Life Insurance Company, recently exonerated from a charge of larceny by a decision of the Supreme Court of New York, in connection with the company's contribution to the Republican campaign fund to elect Roosevelt in 1904, on Thursday sent the company his personal check for $54,019.19 to re-imburse the company for that wrongful expenditure of the policyholders' money. If President Roosevelt still believes in the "square deal" he will see that National Chairman Cortelyou will disgorge $54,019.19 to re-imburse Perkins.

HIT SHOALS

Schooner Stanley H. Minor From Satilla to Philadelphia on Frying Pan.

LIFE SAVERS RESCUED CREW

Capt. Fullerton Had His Wife Aboard and With Men Had Trying Experience—Blanche Floated Vessel Without Assistance.

The schooner Stanley H. Minor, 567 tons, Capt. Fullerton, from Satilla River, March 4, for Philadelphia, with a cargo of piling, during a heavy fog off the coast early Friday morning went ashore on Frying Pan Shoals, about eight miles from Cape Fear Lightship, suffering loss of her deck load, most of her rigging and some of her masts. Capt. Fullerton, his wife, first and second mates and four sailors were taken from aboard the ship yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, after a trying experience, and were landed at Southport by the life savers at Bald Head Station. The vessel was subsequently, after she had been abandoned, according to the claim of the tow boat people, floated by the Wilmington tug Blanche and towed into Southport last night. She is said to have nearly twelve feet of water in her hold.

Owing to the heavy fog off the coast Friday morning when the vessel first went ashore she could not be made out from the life saving station, but at the earliest moment boats were launched and captain and crew were brought in. Before leaving the ship, one of the men said that they let go an anchor. Capt. Fullerton and crew suffered greatly from the cold and exposure and the arrival of the life savers was timely, as the vessel had filled rapidly and was pounding hard. The tug Blanche and pilot boat Isabel were the first to reach the distressed vessel, and the tug at once began pulling on her. Men from the pilot boat boarded her and the Blanche started in with her tow yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock. She was later joined by the tug Alexander Jones, and the two brought her over the bar safely. The United States revenue cutter Seminole steamed down the river at 1 o'clock yesterday afternon, as soon as word of the wreck was received, but she met the Blanche with the tow on the outside and assistance was declined.

Capt. Fullerton, Mrs. Fullerton and members of the crew lost everything they had in the way of personal belongings, except the second mate, who saved a suit of clothing. They suffered greatly from the cold and exposure during Friday night and yesterday morning, but were made as comfortable as possible upon their arrival at Southport. The cutter reported that a part of the cargo of the schooner seemed to be on fire, but the vessel was in no danger from this. The vessel is a four-master and was built at Newcastle, Me., in 1902. She is 567 net tons register, 200 feet long, 36 feet beam and 13 feet depth of hold. She carries a crew of eight. The salvage claim in the rescue of the vessel will be large. Capt. Fullerton is communicating with the owners in Boston through Mr. C. D. Maffitt, the local agent of the ship owners.

Mr. Z. V. Croom is Promoted.

A special from Statesville, N. C., to the Charlotte Observer of yesterday says: "Mr. Z. V. Croom, who has been the local manager of the Bell Telephone Company in Statesville, since that company bought the local exchange about a year ago, has been succeeded by Mr. Salley, of Burlington, who has taken charge. Mr. Croom says he has been promoted to a position under General Manager J. Epps Brown, of the Bell company, a position which he has long sought. His position in the future will be that of a special agent and he may spend part of his time in this territory. He will go to Wilmington, his former home, in a few days to visit his wife and child, who have been there a month, and after a short stay there will enter upon his new duties."

BIG FLOW OF WATER

Million and a Half Gallons from Well at New Chadbourn Ice Factory. Ready for Strawberry Movement With Refrigeration.

A remarkable flow of arteslan water from a well 135 feet deep was struck yesterday by the Independent Ice Company at their new plant at Chadbourn, N. C. Since last September Mr. L. H. Simmons, general manager of the company, has had a force of men at work on wells looking for water with which to supply the factory but until yesterday it seemed that the effort was going to be a failure and there were some fears that the ice plant might not be gotten in operation in time for the strawberry season. But the flow yesterday was a strike indeed. From a ten-inch well a supply of a million and a half gallons a day was found and the factory will begin operation at once, the well affording all the water and more than is needed. It is said to be of fine quality and flows freely in response to the pump. One well was sunk 450 feet with no result and then another was started. The big supply was found at 135 feet and there was genuine rejoicing at Chadbourn when announcement was made.

The Independent Ice Company Monday will have its three plants in full operation including the Worth factory in this city, giving them the tremendous capacity of 175 tons per day. Already 1,500 tons have been sent to the icing stations for the strawberry movement up the Wilmington and Weldon road, and 6,000 tons storage will be filled at Chadbourn. Three thousand tons will be sent from the Wilmington plants to Chadbourn. The Independent people are now well fixed to furnish all the refrigeration that is needed for the strawberry movement, which will begin in a few weeks.

BUILD OVERHEAD CROSSING

Suburban Bridge Over A. C. L. Tracks Near Delgado Station.

Captain J. T. Dooley, foreman of construction for the Consolidated Company, has a force of between 75 and 80 men at work on the overhead crossing of the suburban line over the Atlantic Coast Line tracks just beyond Delgado. It is understood that the A. C. L. and C. R., L. P. Co., will build the structure jointly. The overhead crossing was decided upon so as to maintain without delay at any time the 30-minute schedule between Wilmington and the beach. An interlocking switch and a tower were considered, but the overhead crossing was at length decided upon as the most expeditious and the safest to the travelling public. The Atlantic Coast Line tracks will be depressed about four feet and as the crossing is near the bottom of a grade both ways, the structure will not have to be so high and will be entirely safe. The work thus far consists of making a fill for the approaches to the superstructure and the completion of the crossing will require some time, though the Consolidated Company expects to get it completed in time for the Summer travel. The work is now being pushed with that end in view.

SIZZLING THE WORD

Local Municipal Campaign Reached Red Hot Stage on the Streets Yesterday.

CARD FROM MR. P. Q. MOORE

Denies and Denounces Affidavits That Appeared in Hands of His Opponents—Mr. Springer Repudiates the Documents.

The campaign is red hot. The primary is next Wednesday, the registration closed yesterday, tomorrow is challenge day and the workers for the various candidates are neither eating nor sleeping when there is any chance to further their cause. The "oldest inhabitant," after a round with the boys, eagely remarks that he doesn't remember a campaign in Wilmington when the lines were so closely drawn and there was greater activity among the workers. The registration which closed in the several wards at 6 o'clock yesterday evening is very heavy. The friends of the candidates have exercised a diligent surveillance over the books and all men and sons of men over the age of 21 have not only been told to register but they have been brought to the polls and made to register. There was no new registration, but many had moved their residences since two years ago and these were required to register anew. From the fact that many names of persons who have removed from the city or have moved from one ward to another still remain on the books, the registration is all out of proportion in all the wards.

The most sensational development of the day in municipal circles was the issuance of sworn affidavits, affecting Alderman P. Q. Moore, one of the candidates for the Mayoralty. In justice to Mr. Moore the following card from him is published:

"To the Voters of the City of Wilmington:

"There is being circulated in this community, by those opposing, my candidacy for mayor, a paper signed and sworn to by one H. C. Ellers, charging that about fifteen years ago I attempted to move a negro family into the same house that Ellers occupied; that he went to see my father (now dead) with reference to the matter, and who told him 'that he would rather live in the house with some negroes than some white people.' I simply wish to say in reply that the whole statement as far as my connection with any such matter as the one to which Ellers refers is concerned is a base fabrication and is absolutely false, and I am fully satisfied that were my father, who is now long since dead, living he would likewise deny the statement in equally strong terms.

"I have endeavored in every instance to conduct a clean and honorable campaign and am only surprised that those opposing me should resort to such methods in order to prejudice my candidacy before the people.

"PARKER QUINCE MOORE.,,

In equal justice to Mr. Springer ,the opposing candidate, he should be quoted in an interview given to the press after the appearance of the affidavits yesterday afternoon:

"I most emphatically had nothing to do with this affidavit," he said when questioned by a reporter. He said that he had heard reports on the streets, touched upon in the affidavit but had discouraged their circulation and had never seen one of the papers until one was demanded from a Mr. Taylor with whom he was talking when Mr. Taylor was accosted by Mr. Roger Moore, who demanded to see the copy and produced it in the presence of him (Mr. Springer). Mr. Springer s aid that he did not endorse any such campaign methods and immediately he became informed of the contents of these affidavits, he requested that they be turned over to Mr. Moore or be destroyed. He said that he had endeavored to have a clean campaign and would stand for no dirty methods now or on primary day.

Rev. D. J. Sanders Dead.

D., one of the best known colored divines in the State, formerly pastor of Chestnut Street Presbyterian Church in this city and president of Biddle University at Charlotte, at the time of his death, passed away at his home last Wednesday after a lingering illness. He was a wise, conservative, capable leader of his race in the South, and his passing away is generally regretted all over the State.

OLD WOMAN BURNED

Fire That Was Fatal in Southern Part of City Last Night—Lamp Fell on Aged Negress at Her Home.

Hannah Whitfied, colored, 80 years of age, was burned to death last night about 10:30 o'clock at her home near Twelfth and Queen streets. She was asleep in a small onestory frame house, where she lived with her daughter and a grandson, about 21 years old. From appearances after the firemen reached the scene, a lamp had been left on a mantel just above the head of a bed in which the old colored woman had retired. There was no one at home, from all accounts, and the fire was discovered by persons in the neighborhood, who turned in an alarm from box 52, at Seventh and Queen, four blocks away. By the time the firemen arrived the old woman s grandson, who said that he was in the vicinity, and others had extinguished the flames. The lamp had evidently fallen near the head of the bed, exploded on the floor and saturated the bed clothing with oil. The colored woman was burned about the face and neck badly, and died on the floor to which she had rolled and been wrapped in a sheet to extinguish the blaze. The damage to the building was trifling.

Chief Schnibben, of the Fire Department, notified the coroner of the death and he made an inquiry into the circumstances finding the facts about as related. No one was at home except the old woman when the fire occurred. The grandson, who was in the vicinity and says he ran to the house, seemed dazed and could give no clear account of the facts.

A GRAND PRODUCTION.

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" Here Thursday, 14th.

Miss Anna Day, who is starring this season in Ernest Shipman's grand production of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," has probably received as many laudatory comments as any living actress. More especially as "Mary Tudor," in her present play has her work been favorably criticized. The following expression from one of the best critics of the day, and a severe one, seems to best set forth the opinion of theatergoers in general:

"The play, 'When Knighthood Was in Flower,' affords many theatrical opportunities, and these Miss Day adroitly uses. Her embodiment of "Mary Tudor" crystallizes into one engaging personality the attributes of authority, impetuosity, intrepedity, force of will, gleeful caprice alternating with tenderness, and ardent passion tempered with both sweetness and mirth. She presents a woman who loves, and who, amind enemies and perils, has the courage of her love. It seems probable that her impersonation shows her personal ideal of womanhood, and is but little, if any, removed from a revelation of her actual self. It certainly is an interesting and winning image of feminine variety, integrity, fidelity, romantic ardor and feminine charm."

NEW LIGHTS INSTALLED.

Those Which Have Recently Been Put in and Their Location.

Night before last eight new electric street lights were installed in the city. These lights were ordered placed some time ago, but owing to difficulties in getting the necessary machinery the Consolidated Company was unable to put the lights up until now.

The locations of the new lights are as follows: Eighth and Church, Second and Dawson; Ninth and Wooster, Water and Ann, Front and Cowan, Front and Nixon, Tenth and Dock, Second and Brunswick.

The present Light Committee, of which Alderman Brown is chairman, has been very energetic in looking after the lighting of the city. Altogether during the present administration there have been added 23 arc lights and 14 gas lights.

A RUSH AT RALEIGH

Closing Days of General Assembly Fraught With Usual Avalanche of Bills

NEARLY "SNEKED" THROUGH

One Repealing Johnson Prohibition Law Under "Fishy" Title—Silver Service for Cruiser—Other Proceedings Yesterday.

(By Southern Bell Telephone.)

Raleigh, N. C., March 9.—The closing hours of the General Assembly were characterized by the usual rush and confusion in the anxious haste of members to get through their special local bills, with over and anon the presentation of some more important measure. All day the grind has been with a view to the clearing of the calendars for final adjournment Monday at noon. This is the definite programme now.

The Senate convened at 9:30 this morning. Among the bills passed were: Authorizing Wilson to issue bonds. Increase punishment for attempt to commit criminal assault. Amend general insurance law. Allow railroad to construct belt lines. Regulate fees of clerks of court in pauper appeals.

The bill to elect the State Insurance Commissioner by the people was passed by a vote of 29 to 12.

The bill to establish a State hospital for tuberculosis passed second reading and on objection to final reading took its place on the calendar.

The bill to pay Superior Court judges for special terms of court was voted down.

The Senate refused to concur in the House bill amendments as to Fish Commission. A conference committee was appointed.

The House convened at 9:30. Representative Dowd called attention to a "sneak bill," which had been discovered, and under the innocent title to "prevent fishing in Black Creek," contained a section that repealed the prohibition law of Johnson county. It had passed its reading, but had not been ratified. Mr. Dowd offered a bill to revoke the "sneak bill" and this was passed unanimously.

Mr. Murphy, of Rowan, with some degree of sarcasm appealed to the House to pass this bill of Mr. Dowd, preventing the fraud, as this was the identical means by which the anti-jug law was saddled on the State two years ago. Among bills passed by the House were:

To limit admission to the State School for the Deaf at Morganton to native North Carolinians.

Require vote of the people before selling or leasing water or light plants by towns. New Hanover and Cumberland counties are excepted.

To enlarge powers of the Corporation Commission.

Amend charter of Carthage.

Require one stockholder and one director of all railroads to reside in the State.

Joint Resolution for statue of Vance in Statuary Hall in Washington, to cost about $12,000.

Limit poll tax in towns and cities to $2, with a number of counties excepted, including New Hanover, Union and Beaufort.

The adjustment of freight rate differences between the House and the Senate came up on a motion of Mr. Parsons to adopt the Senate amendment, which strikes out the speculative damage clause. There were a number of speeches for and against the amendment. Speaker Justice made a vigorous and lengthy argument for the speculative damages clause, which he had offered as an amendment to the House bill and procured its adoption some days ago. The motion to reconsider prevailed. The Senate amendment striking out the speculative damages clause was adopted and the bill then passed 78 to 2.

Speaker Justice did not ask to be excused from voting on the bill, as he did not care to cast a vote for such an inadequate penalty clause.

The House took a recess until 4 o'clock, when a message was received from Governor Glenn urging among other things that a bill be passed providing for the presentation of a silver service to the battleship North Carolina. A bill was pending with unfavorable report, appropriating $5,000 for this purpose. It was brought up and passed with the amount changed to $2,500.

Among other bills passed were the following: Extend limits of Fayetteville; relative to Croatan Normal School in Robeson; define jurisdiction of Rocky Mount Recorders' Court; for stock law election in Sampson county; supplementary bill explanatory of bond issue in Robeson; validate stock law election in Sampson. The House adjourned until 8 o'clock.

The Night Session.

Raleigh, N. C., March 9.—The Senate met at 8 o'clock tonight and received the report of the conference committee on State officers' salaries and turning fees into the State Treasury. The report showed the items of $1,500 for assistant attorney general and an increase of the State Bank Examiner's salary to $2,400 were retained and an increase of Supreme

MAY AID IN IRRIGATION.

The recent amendment by Congress to the denatured alcohol bill has again aroused interest in the various uses to which denatured alcohol can be economically put. The material for distilling commercial alcohol is almost limitless, and Congress did right when it sat down on some fool Congressman's amendment requiring that a government guager be present in any distillery manufacturing denatured alcohol. That would have made an alcohol distillery expensive and would have prevented the farmers from having their own stills to make alcohol for their own use or to utilize the waste products on the plantation to make alcohol for sale for the cheap purposes for which it is intended.

The report of Charles Edward Lucke, Assistant Professor of Mechanical Engineering at Columbia University, and S. M. Woodard, irrigation engineer, who have been investigating the use of denatured alcohol as a fuel, for the Department of Agriculture, since the recent removal of the tax on the product, was distributed in Washington a few days ago. The Government Director, A. C. True, attaches great value to the report. He says:

"The pumping of water for irrigation and drainage has already assumed great importance, as approximately 600,000 acres of land are irrigated with pumped water. A large part of the unreclaimed arid land can get water in no other way, and as a rule it is so located that fuel of any kind is difficult to get. Alcohol offers in such cases a hope of cheaper fuel, which may mean the reclamation of large areas, since the land irrigated can produce the fuel to maintain its water supply. At present it does not appear that alcohol will produce power as cheaply as gasoline where the latter can be easily obtained, but as a rule the regions where there will be the greatest demand for pumping are the farthest removed from sources of the common fuels, and, on the other hand, they can produce large quantities of crops from which alcohol can be made. This, with the improvements which will undoubtedly be made in alcohol engines, may bring alcohol into use as the distinctive fuel for pumping water for irrigation."

Prof. Lucke says that alcohol should immediately supplant gasoline for use in boats by reason of its greater safety and adaptability to the work. Cleanliness in handling, increased safety in storing, and less offensiveness in the exhaust, are given as reasons why alcohol should supersede gasoline in automobile engines.

One of the most important conclusions of the report covers the fact that "any engine on the American market today, operating with gasoline or kerosene, can operate with alcohol fuel without any structural change whatever, by means of proper manipulation."

THE SALTON SEA.

A dispatch in the Star the past week stated that storms on the Salton Sea were again causing trouble to the Southern Pacific Railroad, the tracks of which run across the edges of the sea and had to be protected at great expense to the railroad company. The railroad was there first but the great inland sea seems to be somewhat a monopolist and defies the railroad in that particular.

Many people will be surprised to know that this great inland sea, which was formed only a few years ago, is one hundred miles long and thirty miles wide. It is in Southeastern California and was the outgrowth of a break of the Colorado river, which during a great flood, changed its course and filed in a country which was largely a desert but which also contained many valuable estates. The water, of course, drove thousands of people from their homes, and, the Government had to take steps to turn the river back into its course so as to reclaim the land. The engineers only recently announced that the beach had been closed. The river has, therefore, been turned back into its old course but when the lake will dry up, if it ever will, is hard to foretell. The Brooklyn Citizen says of the closing of the breach in the Colorado:

"Not being on the ground, one has to take the description of the difficulty of turning back the Colorado River to its original channel near Yuma just above the junction of California, Colorado and Lower California, without question; yet there never should have been any doubt that the experts employed to do the task would accomplish it, because nature assisted them by "the lay of the land."

"The day that any of the water that formerly flowed past the point of the break which was, by the way, an artificial one, into the old channel made by the river itself, was sure to mark the beginning of the return of it all; and it should have been a part of the plan to bring it back, whether it was or not, to deepen that channel at the point of the break, or above it.

"However, it seems that the work has been accomplished at last, and there is nothing to do but to fortify the embankment constructed so that the water can never break through it again, but will continue to flow southward as of old into the Gulf of California.

"Meantime, the Salton Sea, as the vast body of water it poured into the deep desert of Southern California is called, remains, and because the bottom of the desert is far below sea devel, there it will remain until the hot sun of the region often raising the temperature to 120 degrees F. in the shade, shall evaporate it; and as it is many feet deep and covers a territory thirty or more miles broad and over one hundred miles in length, it will take several years to restore the conditions that were found before the break."

CURRENT COMMENT.

Revise the tariff and modify the navigation laws so as to remove the harassing restriction now burdening American shipping, and the American flag would eventually be seen in every port. To subsidize shipping is but to fasten the evils of protectionism more strongly upon us. It is protectionism run mad.—Washington Times.

—We are glad to note that the bill transferring Surry county from the Eighth to the Fifth Congressional district passed the House Thursday. If it becomes law a marked decrease of interest in the Republican nomination in the Eigth will speedily become observable.—Charlotte Observer.

—The Thaw insanity plea appears to be having many imitators throughout the country. First came the Bywaters case in Virginia, and now a man being tried in Washington, D. C., for the killing of his erstwhile lady love, advances the plea that he was temporarily insane because of disappointment in love. Some may, however, contend that there is ground for this latest plea, upon the theory that only a man who was already insane could have been made insane by disappointment in love.—Greensboro Industrial News.

—Learning that the method of polishing rice to give it a pearly appearance deprived it of a large percentage of its albuminous and fatteining qualities and that the Japanese use it unpolished, was what opened our eyes to the advantages of unpolished rice. The trade refusing to supply rice in this form the Vegetarian Society supplied it to the public, and last year already about forty times more unpolished rice has been sold than was sold the first year of its introduction. The increase during 1904 and 1905 was about fourfold each year.—Vegetarian Magazine.

—It is worthy of note in connection with the now famous Glover-Eddy-Christian Science suit, though not related to it, that the banks of Concord still have faith in Mrs. Eddy's ability to manage her own affairs. The president of Mrs. Eddy's local banking house at Concord says that she directs all investments, signs all checks and otherwise keeps in close touch with her business affairs. Bankers are necessarily a shrewd and discerning set of men, and if there were anything seriously wrong with Mrs. Eddy the Concord bankers would be among the first to discover it.—Savannah News.

FORGAVE MRS. SIDDONS.

She Did Not, According to Her Father, Marry an Actor.

Mrs. Siddons, the actress, was born in 1755 at the Shoulder of Mutton inn, Brecon, south Wales, of parents connected with the theater, her father, Roger Kemble, being a strolling manager. The child Sarah was reared in a theatrical atmosphere, and at ten she was playing Ariel.

As she grew up she became very beautiful and had many admirers, among whom was Henry Siddons, a young actor in her father's company, who had little difficulty in winning the girl's heart. Mr. and Mrs. Kemble had made up their minds that Sarah should not marry in the profession, in consequence of which they strenuously opposed the marriage, and young Siddons in a fit of retaliatory humor composed a song detailing their opposition and his trials, which brought about his speedy dismissal from the company. Sarah left the company, too, and hired out as lady's maid in Warwickshire for two years.

During this time the lovers carried on a lively correspondence and finally, gaining the reluctant consent of the Kembles, were married at Trinity church, Coventry, in 1773, when Sarah was eighteen.

It is said that Mr. Kemble told her if she ever married an actor it would make him discard her forever. After her marriage he said, "I may forgive you without breaking my word, for you have certainly not married 'an actor,' whatever the gentleman himself may think is his vocation." This is on authority of Lady Eleanor Butler, who knew the persons.

JAPANESE SAINTS.

The One Most Beloved by the People Is Binzuru.

Among the many Buddhist-Shinto saints, whose quaint effigies set up in every conceivable nook and corner of Japan make it a "country of graven images," one of the most impressive and interesting is the pathetic person called Binzuru. He was once upon a time a member of that strange company of Buddhist disciples known as the "Sixteen Rakkan." But one day he fell from grace by remarking upon the attractions of a woman, and he was expelled from the society of chaste brethren. The great Buddha gave him, in return for all that his worldliness had cost him, power to heal human ills and to grant the prayers of childless women who longed for motherhood. But he was put outside the temples. He must henceforth sit without, in the midst of the passing throng, and submit himself to personal contact with all that was unclean and healthless. The simple hearted people love him, I think, above all saints. His wooden images in the temple porches are the strangest objects in all Japan. They give him soft cushions to sit upon, and he is always clothed in quaint little cotton stuff collars and mufflers in all sorts of soiled looking colors, and on his head his devotees usually keep a curious little cotton cap.—Eleanor Franklin in Leslie's Weekly.

Sydney Smith's Sharp Tongue.

Sydney Smith was at a party one evening when, seeing Mrs. Grote, wife of the historian, enter, wearing a rose colored turban, he suddenly exclaimed, "I now know the meaning of the word grotesque!" He professed his cordial liking for both her and her husband, saying: "I like them. I like him, he is so ladylike, and I like her, she's such a perfect gentleman."

and of course it's too bad. We called in Gowan's Pneumonia Cure—a fifty cent size and our home is happy. They called in the undertaker, and are now regretting.
Say all you want, but taking time by the forelock is the thing. People procrastinate—they put off and then regret. I always keep a bottle of Gowan's in the house and I never worry about croup or colds or pneumonia. Cheap insurance—why, peace of mind is worth ten times that. Take my advice and get a bottle.
Truly,
JACK.

IT'S IN THE DRAFT.

The secret of the fuel-saving qualities of this Buck's hot blast heater lies in the draft construction. It is so made as to allow large quantities of heated air to pass over the upper surface of the burning coal, thus supplying oxygen to the rising gasses, which are then converted into heating power.

Simple, isn't it? And yet it's new principle in stove building—not to be found elsewhere.

This stove will reduce your coal bill nearly one-third.

Let us tell your of its many advantages.

On the Boston Express

By EDITH J. HULBERT

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

Wentworth paused in the doorway and glanced carelessly over the car. Then he turned to the porter with an involuntary sigh of relief.

"Either of these two vacant seats will do," he said.

The porter consulted his book.

"No. 12 is engaged, sah, but you can have 13."

"All right," said Wentworth, taking possession.

After his belongings had been fingered for the conventional length of time and the dusky official had retreated Wentworth looked at his watch.

"Five minutes to starting time," he murmured, "and no sign of her yet, for which fact the lady has my heartfelt gratitude."

"My, won't Collins be in the deuce of a funk, though! He seems to be uncommonly keen over the affair. I'll see what he says again." And, fumbling in his pocket, he produced a crimpled slip of paper.

Smoothing it out, he read half audibly: "Look out for Annette Blain on Boston express. She has wind of the state's intention to call her as a witness in the Brent murder trial and is going to cross the border. Is about twenty-two and slender, with brown hair and gray or blue eyes; timid manner; dresses well, but plainly. Get an interview with her and find out all she knows about the case. Don't let this slip. Should be a beat. Other papers not on."

"Nice thing to foist on a man just starting on a vacation," grumbled Wentworth. "Anyway I've been through all the cars—they're all jammed—and there's no such person in sight. That lets me out, and—Jove!"

The porter had come back, followed by a heavily veiled young woman in a long dark blue traveling coat. As she sank wearily into the seat opposite No. 13 a warning shriek came from the great engine, and the train puffed slowly out of the station.

Wentworth eyed her furtively, while the porter punctiliously arranged her luggage in the rack.

"My victim undoubtedly," he soliloquized. "Poor child! I wonder if she thinks that covering her face with a thick veil when the thermometer is 80 is a good way to escape notice. How had I best open up the attack? Moral certainty all's very well, but I'm afraid mine would become shaky if she should deny her identity. There's something about the poise of her head that indicates she'd have the nerve to do it, too, and I've really nothing to go by. Confound that veil!"

At this point a small leather hand bag obligingly slid off the newcomer's lap, and Wentworth promptly presented it to her with his best bow.

"Thank you," she murmured politely, but in a tone that distinctly discouraged any attempt at conversation on his part. He felt instinctively that it would not be advisable even to make any suggestions concerning the window or the chair. He resumed his seat and sulkily regarded the flying landscape for several minutes.

When he turned again, his vis-a-vis had thrown back her veil. As he looked at her Wentworth found it difficult to suppress an exclamation of amazement. She was so like and yet so unlike Collins' terse description of the fugitive witness. Slender she certainly was; twenty-two she might be, although sixteen would seem nearer the truth, and her manner was undoubtedly timid. But surely the phrase "brown hair" conveyed no adequate conception of those rippling, gold flecked chestnut waves that swept away from her broad white brow and were gathered in a loose coil at the nape of her neck. Surely the man who had told Collins about her "gray or blue eyes" never had picked violets diamonded with the dew of an early May morning. Surely no one but a brute could endure the thought of the delicate pink of those softly rounded cheeks deepening to scarlet and those exquisitely curved lips quivering under the pitiless fire of cross questioning from half a dozen lawyers regarding the hideous details of the Brent murder case.

Her testimony was not essential. The case of the state was sufficiently strong without it. Justice would lose nothing by her absence. Her flight was not only entirely honorable—it was a sacred duty she owed herself and her family.

Fortunately she was safe enough now. Soon after passing the next station they would cross the line into Connecticut, and there would be no question of further pursuit. If only she were a shade more approachable he was sure he could give her some valuable advice in the matter.

At this point in his reflections the train came to a full stop. "Why, we're there already," he muttered, glancing out of the window, and then involuntarily he smiled sympathetically at the girl.

She, however, did not seem to be at all in a mood to receive congratulations. She was very pale; her lips were twitching nervously, and when, just as the train started again, the porter entered the car, followed by the conductor, an expression of utter terror came into her eyes.

Evidently her fears were not altogether groundless. The two men went directly to her, and while the porter murmured consolingly, "Now, don't be afraid, miss; no one ain't gwine to hurt you," the conductor produced a telegraph form from which he read rapidly in a low tone.

Wentworth made no attempt to conceal the fact that he was listening.

"You see," said the conductor, handing her the paper, "these instructions are from police headquarters, so there is nothing for me to do but give you into custody at New Haven."

"Rubbish!" ejaculated Wentworth before the girl could speak. "If you do any such fool thing as that you'll find yourself in about the worst scrape you ever tackled. This young lady isn't charged with any crime, is she?"

The conductor shook his head doubtfully.

"Of course not. Well, you know quite as well as I do that you can't serve a subpoena out of the state. It's up to her to say whether she'll go back and be a witness in that beastly trial or not. That wire didn't come from police headquarters any more than you did. Let me see it."

Impressed by the decision of his manner, the conductor almost mechanically complied with his demand.

"Just as I thought," pursued Miss Blain's self constituted protector—"a pure fake. Haven't even got her name right. Spelled it with an 'r.'"

"How should it be spelled?" asked the porter.

"Why, with an 'n,' naturally," said Wentworth, with withering scorn.

"Do you know this gentleman?" asked the conductor, turning to the girl.

"I—that is"— she began helplessly.

"Know me? Why, I'm one of her best friends," interposed Wentworth hastily, managing to give her elbow a surreptitious pressure. "I came on this train purposely to look after her, although she didn't know of my intention."

There was a moment's silence, during which the girl kept her face averted, the porter shuffled uneasily and Wentworth looked defiantly at the conductor, who shrugged his shoulders.

"Well," remarked that official at length, "I'm no lawyer or detective either, and I don't know whether that wire's straight or not, but I don't like to make things unpleasant for a lady. I can't interfere with the proper authorities if they come on at New Haven, but I don't know as it's my business to give 'em any help. Perhaps you can fix some plan between you." And, motioning to the porter to precede him, he passed on through the car.

The girl turned quickly to Wentworth.

"What did you mean," she asked, "by talking about my testifying in a case? Who do you think I am?"

"I don't think anything about it," said Wentworth. "I know you're Annette Blain, and you're leaving New York so you won't be obliged to appear at the Brent trial." And he glanced significantly at her luggage, on which the letters "A. B." appeared conspicuously in several places.

"Oh, no, I'm not. I'm Antoinette Blair, and I never heard of the Brent case. I'm simply running away from home to escape marrying a man I detest, and my guardian has found it out and sent that horrid wire. They'll keep me at New Haven until he gets there. I know they will."

Wentworth gave a low whistle.

"How old are you?" he asked abruptly.

"Nineteen."

Wentworth considered for a moment.

"See here," he said. "Will you trust yourself to me?"

Miss Blair smiled a little tremulously.

"It seems about the only thing for me to do," she said.

"Then listen. There's a flag station this side of New Haven. I'll fix the porter to stop the train there, and we'll slip off and take the next train back to some station where we can hire a trap to drive over and connect with the Central. I have an aunt living in Albany who'll be delighted to keep you for a few days until you can arrange your plans."

"How good you are!" murmured the girl fervently. "How can I ever repay you?"

Wentworth flashed an eloquent glance at her, whereat she blushed deeply and busied herself with her luggage.

The city editor of the Evening Star received two telegrams from Wentworth before he returned from his vacation.

The first was dated "Portchester" and read:

No trace of woman on express.

The second came from Albany a week later, and Collins groaned as he read:

Was married today in this city. Going Niagara. Back 24th. WENTWORTH.

"Another good man spoiled," sighed Collins.

A Ready Helper.

"Maria is a well meaning soul, now, isn't she?" said one of Maria's much tried relatives to another. "She has a real helpful spirit."

"That she has," returned the other sufferer heartily. "I suppose Maria has done more to get tickets for people who didn't want them to go to places they couldn't abide, sold more articles to people who couldn't use them, assisted more people over crossings who were boiling with rage because they preferred to go alone or with the policeman, helped more kinswomen to make up their minds in the exactly opposite way from the one they wished and told more strangers in the city things they already knew than any other woman in Christendom."

"But if you told her the braid was ripped off the bottom of her skirt she wouldn't really like it," said the first speaker.

"No; I've noticed that these ready helpers never care for suggestions themselves. Curious, isn't it?"

Maria's luckless relatives sighed in concert.—Youth's Companion.

—The many friends of Col. A. M. Waddell were delighted to see him out yesterday for a short time. Col. Waddell walked down to his office during the morning, but was unable to hold court, which duty has been filled so ably for him during the past several weeks by Mayor Pro Tem. O'Brien.

He was accompanied by two charming little girls, Misses Margaret Bellamy and Dolores Holt, who wanted to come and see some of their Fayetteville relatives."

Goes With Southern National.

Mr. Richard H. Bradley, for several years in charge of the general ledgers with the Murchison National Bank, has resigned that position and goes on the 19th of March with the Southern National, of this city, as teller. This is a decided promotion for Mr. Bradley, who has been with the banks of Wilmington for a number of years, and is thoroughly conversant with the banking business. The duties of teller at The Southern have been filled heretofore by Mr. W. B. Drake, Jr., with his other duties as assistant cashier, but the business of the Southern has grown so that the new position had to be filled by one man. Mr. Bradley is to be congratulated upon forming a connection in the higher position with the Southern.

Prominent Woodmen Are Off.

A photograph was taken of this remarkable snow, which is preserved.

What you learn from bad habits in bad society you will never forget, and it will be a lasting pang to you. A RUSH AT RALEIGH

Court judges to $3,250 was eliminated. This report was adopted.

Among bills passed was one to amend charter of Burgaw.

The Senate has changed the appropriation for the silver service for the North Carolina cruiser from $2,500 as fixed by the House to $5,000. A conference committee was appointed.

A bill passed to require express companies to pay damages for loss to property.

The Senate spent much of its time waiting for reports and singing songs including the "Old North State." The Senate adjourned to 10 o'clock Monday

The House convened at 8:30. The bill to provide instruction as to the injury of intoxicants and cigarettes to the human system in the public schools passed.

The conference committee on the anti-trust bill reported that no agreement could be reached with the Senate committee, and asked to be discharged. This was done. Representative Parsons moved to reconsider the vote by which the House refused to concur in the McLean substitute. This precipitated a spirited discussion. Stevens, of Union, declared the House must not recede, but just put it up to the Senate to either yield to the demand of the House or make it impossible for any anti-trust legislation at this session. Preston, of Mecklenburg, took a similar position. Julian, of Rowan, and others declared that a bill similar to the McLean substitute had failed to pass the House by one vote a few days ago. This would show that a great majority of the entire Assembly favored the McLean substitute. The Democratic way was to adopt that measure, concurring with the State. The motion to reconsider was carried 52 to 28.

Speaker Justice gave notice of his purpose to file a protest for reasons he would state. Mr. Winborne offered an amendment to the McLean substitute, which he said would have been a part of the conference committee report, had an agreement been reached. This was the Manning amendment adopted in the House bill, and taken from the Massachusetts trust law. Doughton spoke at length for the amendment and substitute. Justice made a fiery speech and presented an amendment identical with section A, of the Reid bill. He charged since the Republican banquet last night, the minority had been voting as a unit with the so-called conservative Democrats. Harshaw, Grant and Harshaw declared such matters were not mentioned at the banquet at all. He demanded to know how many suppers Justice had attended given by Josephus Daniels, "chief lobbyist of Raleigh," and what had been discussed there. Justice replied that trust matters had not been discussed at suppers he had attended with Mr. Daniels. The discussion at times became especially fiery and the halls rang with frequent applause on one side and then the other.

Finally at 12:30 this (Sunday) morning the previous question was called by Mr. Manning. The Winborne amendments was adopted by a large majority without roll call. Mr. Justice demanded a roll call on his amendment and it was adopted 57 to 17.

The House then adjourned until 9 o'clock Monday morning. The general opinion is that it will be absolutely impossible for the House and Senate to reach an agreement on the anti-trust bill, the whole contest tonight being purely a play of politics.

The Wilmington primary bill did not come up tonight in the Senate according to the journal of the proceedings. Mr. Bellamy could not be seen at the night session.

THE WILD CARROT.

One of the Most Interesting of Our Native Plants.

A weed has been defined as "a plant that persists in growing where it is not desired." Surely the wild carrot is a most weedy weed from the point of view of that definition and of the dislike of the farmer. As to the persistence, our veteran farmer-naturalist John Burroughs tells us: "Cut off the head of the wild carrot, and in a week there are five heads in room of the one. Cut off these, and by fall there are ten looking defiance at you from the same root."

The only fault of the wild carrot, as of other so called weeds, is too great success in life. It is guilty only of persistence. But from a nature lover's point of view there are, strictly speaking, no weeds. No plant is disliked. On the contrary, the more a plant is able to strive successfully for life the more of interest it is. We can also see and appreciate the beauty without the "weedy" dislike.

If in this spirit observers will examine the wild carrot the verdict will be that it is one of the prettiest and most interesting of our native plants. The beauty is especially noticeable in the full bloom, or Queen Anne's lace, form. Perhaps some may regard the bird's nest form as the most interesting.—Exchange.

Kicks Its Food Into Its Mouth.

"This is an aye-aye," said the keeper of the monkey house. "Watch it kick its food into its mouth."

The aye-aye, a handsome lemur, hurried to the plate of cut carrots that the keeper had just pushed under the bars. It stood before the food, which it took up piece by piece in its fore paw and tossed swiftly through the air into its open mouth. Like a juggler, it kept a yellow chain of carrots curving through the air from its foot to its mouth continuously. The quick toss of the leg with which this was done had, undeniably, the look of a kick.

"Aye-ayes come from Madagascar," the keeper said. "They are nocturnal in their habits, and they live in holes. The natives regard them with superstitious reverence. They are the only creatures extant that kick their food into their mouths."

Wait for George O. Gaylord's millinery opening. Will be announced later. **

Ellsmore without warning struck Rice on the with an oar and then a fight with pistols and knives followed. Ellsworth, himself badly wounded, finally reached shore with his companions, but they died soon after.

At Evans, Ind yesterday Judge Gilchrist, of the Superior Court rendered a decision in the Presbyterian union controversy in which the unionists won an overwhelming victory. The issue turned upon the legality of the union and the constitutional right of the two Presbyterian churches to enter into the union. In an elaborate decision the judge recounts the history of the many Presbyterian unions in the past two hundred years, and decided that such uniform action amounts to an inherent constitutional right to form any union that the churches might adopt, if action is taken in conformity with their own law.

THE JAMESSTOWN EXPOSITION

April 26th Will Be Opening Day—Roosevelt, May 13th.

(By Cable to The Morning Star.)

Washington, March 9.—At a meeting of the Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition Commission held today in the office of Assistant Secretary Edwards of the Treasury Department, it was decided to invite for the opening day, April 26th, the Ambassadors, Ministers, and naval and military attaches of foreign governments with their wives to participate in the ceremonies as the guests of the commission.

On May 13th, the anniversary of the first settlement at Jamestown, special commemorative ceremonies will be held and on June 10 Georgia day—when the President of the United States is expected to be present—an elaborate programme will be carried out. July 4th will be celebrated in a fitting manner. It was decided to place the soldiers and sailors' rendezvous under the supervision of the Young Men's Christian Association.

—Congress having adjourned, Senator Simmons, accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. A. D. Watts, arrived in Raleigh on Tuesday.

—Mr. A. G. Blanchard, of Fuquay Springs, will erect a 20-room hotel at the springs, to be completed by June.

—At Raleigh on Wednesday the

—At Raleigh on Tuesday the Secretary of State chartered the Belmont Cotton Mills, Shelby, to make yarns, cloths and finish goods. Capital stock $120,000, Charles C. Blanton and others, stockholders. The Pegram-Wadsworth Land Company, Charlotte, $200,000, M. T. Pegram, Jr., C. F. Wadsworth and others.

Secretary of State chartered the Old North State Telephone and Telegraph Company, of Beaufort, with $125,000 capital authorized and $5,000 paid in, to construct, maintain and operate telephone and telegraph lines. D. P. Bible and others are incorporators. The Home Milling Company, of Lenoir, was chartered to manufacture and sell flour meal, bran, feed stuffs, etc. Capital authorized $25,000, paid in $6,500. H. T. Kincard and others incorporators.

—Kenansville News: Our farmers are going to grow more forage this year than ever by planting oats and peas. These crops do not require much labor and peavines are known to be the best soil producers for our section. Some farmers are already sowing oats. We need also to raise wheat as Mr. Pattin, of Calypso, advises. We have an up-to-date roller flour mill there, so why not raise wheat every year and save the large amount spent each year for white adulterated flour. We must take advantage of the Williamson plan of growing three ears of corn where one grew before and make hogs grow where "razor backs" only exist now. Educated negroes can then quit work entirely but our white folks will be enjoying peace and plenty.

—Elizabeth City, March 4: A representative of the Deforest wireless telegraph company was in the city today looking for a site for the purpose of constructing a station here. If a satisfactory site can be secured the station at Hatteras will be secured the station at Hatteras will be moved here, the climatic conditions of the Hatteras section rendering it necessary to seek other quarters for that station.

—The St Andrew Society at Philadelphia has decided to prepare a book regarding the removal of the remains of the Hon. James Wilson from Edenton to that city and has asked the cooperation of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association. The latter will furnish a great many valuable facts regarding the influence of Wilson and his relation to eastern North Carolina, and particularly his life at Edenton, etc.

—Whether in town or country the Japanese children in Hawaii work with an energy that amazes an American. Their parents want them to learn as much as possible about the history and literature of the land of their fathers; so all the Japanese boys and girls go to a Japanese school from 7 o'clock until 9 in the morning. Then they attend an American public school from 9 o'clock until 2 in the afternoon. The moment they are free they hurry back to Japanese school and work there until 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening. Imagine a school day that lasts from 7 in the morning until dark. Yet these brown children thrive on that system. It has been going on for ten years now, and it is impossible to find any record of shattered health or injured eyes as a result of this tremendous industry.—Utica Herald-Dispatch (Rep.)

—Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, will lecture in the opera house at Rocky Mount on the night of March 14th.

—Whiteville Echo: A petition was presented to the County Commissioners Monday asking for a vote on a special school tax in Artesia district in Bogue township. The election was ordered and will be held on April 16th.

—The Legislature appropriates the State university $190,000 for this year and next year and the Normal and Industrial College for Women a like sum. It gives the Agricultural and Mechanical Colege here $140,000 for the same period.

—Raleigh, March 8: The rumor of the coming into Raleigh of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway is quite persistent and it is current among railway people, not only here, but at Rocky Mount, Goldsboro, Kinston, and other points.

—State Insurance Commissioner Young announces that at his request Judge Biggs had appointed T. T. Thorne receiver of the American Live Stock Company, of Rocky Mount, the license of which was cancelled last month.

—The Whiteville News Reporter states that in the Superior Court of Columbus county, Judge Webb presiding, John Gudger, colored, pleaded guilty of attempt to criminally assault Miss Mattie Williamson. He was sentenced to a term of 15 years in the penitentiary.

—Raleigh, Made 8: Insurance Commissioner Young today paid into the State Treasury as February receipts $25,266, which is the greatest amount ever collected in one month. The fiscal year of his department lacks one month of completeness, but receipts already exceed last years. He says the total will exceed $215,000.

—Rocky Mount Record: We are told of a remarkable occurrence at South Rocky Mount last Friday. A little white child, about three years of age, ran on the track and a shifting engine knocked the little fellow down. At that point, between the cross ties they were not filled with gravel, and the child falling between them ,the engine passed over him from and to end without making a scratch on him. His mother, who was standing nearby and saw him knocked down by the rear of the shifting engine, thought surely her child was kiled and fainted dead away, but the little fellow was not only not hurt, but was not even made to cry.

—Rocky Mount Record: Despite the fact that many claim the crop of tobacco is about all sold, we continue to have very good sales, lasting an hour or more almost every day. Something more than 100,000 pounds were sold during the week just passed. Offerings show a falling off in character and color, consisting largely of common grade leaf and lugs. Prices were slightly off first of week, but fully regained the loss and closed Friday as high as any time this year, being rather stiffer Monday and Tuesday. This month will about wind up what is in the country, and the tobacco people will have a long season of inactivity until the next crop is ready for the market.

—Washington correspondence Charlotte Observer, March 8: Senator Dixon, of Montana, who will leave tomorrow for his Western home, says he has little doubt that Speaker Cannon will make the proposed trip to North Carolina the latter part of May, on the occasion of the commencement at Guilford College. Mr. Dixon says he discused the matter with the Speaker the day before that gentleman left with the party of House members for Panama, and that the Speaker said it was his intention to spend several weeks in the East after his return from the isthmus and that he would go to North Carolina unless there arose some wholly unexpected and imperative demand for his presence elsewhere. It is thought possible that the speaker will make a speech on this sumption and that his remarks will have an interest for the political world. Anyway, it is understood that this has been suggested to the Speaker.

—Greensboro, March 8: A message was received here tonight from Attorney General Bonaparte to whom Judge Boyd and Marshal Milliken appealed for advice as to what disposition should be made of the English people who have been kept in custody for nearly four months in order that they might appear as witnesses in the case against the Charlotte mill men, which ended so abruptly yesterday evening. The Attorney General directed that all of the aliens who desire to remain in this country shall be allowed that privilege and that arrangements will be made to deport those who wish to return to England. Several will return to England, but the greater number prefer to remain in America. Marshal Milliken will leave as soon as possible for Baltimore with those who want to return and they will be placed in the care of the immigration officials there. There are 26 of the English people here. Others are at work in mills and several have previously returned to England.

Perfect Womanhood

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, bearing-down sensations, nervousness, irregularities or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as the great woman's remedy for woman's ills, made only of roots and herbs.

It cures Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole female sysem. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the Kidneys in either sex.

BEACH IN FEBRUARY

Writer in Greensboro Daily Industrial News Describes a Visit to North Carolina's Famous Resort in Mid-Winter.

To me the ocean is always attractive. Its interest is not always explainable, but it is invariably definite. Today, February 24, has been raw and damp, and an occasional shower has made it the more dismal. The resources of a hotel on a gloomy day as a rule are soon exhausted, and as a choice between a houseful of stupid, sleepy people and the restless, changing sea, give me the sea.

A good trolley service between Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach makes the journey one of short duration and of pleasure. The cars are large, clean and comfortable, and the pace at which they move is swift, so that in half an hour from starting one is landed at the extreme end of Wrightsville Beach.

The beach is probably two miles long, and houses occupy most of its length. There are two or three comfortable hotels and a club house, and a large number of cottages. The cottages are occupied by people who live in Wilmington in Winter and spend their Summers at the shore. The place is practically abandoned in Winter, but on Sundays when the weather is fine, one or two restaurants and cafes are open.

There were a few restless spirits today, who heard the call of the deep and a small band though we were, we braved the elements to answer the summons.

I like the smell of salt water, and as soon as the car leaves a little place called Greenville, it is well to stand on the front or rear platform if it is a closed car, and drink in the salty air.

The trolley track leaves the mainland hereabouts and runs over a trestle for perhaps half a mile to an island called the "Hammocks," and then over another trestle to Wrightsville Beach.

This trestle runs through marshes that are covered with water of a varying depth, from a few inches at low tide to several feet when the tide is high.

These marshes are covered with grass and weeds, through which numerous narrow channels find their way. I noticed two sail boats lying to in the marshes. They were probably waiting for the tide to get high enough to float them back to deeper water. In Summer one can see bare legged men and boys, wading these marshes searching for soft shell crabs. When the car strikes the trestle over the marshes the first glimpse of the sea about a mile distant is to be had. A long dull blue line, relieved by a white fringe, that a closer inspection transforms into dancing whitecaps, is the first appearance of the ocean.

There was a dreadful storm here in September, and its ravages are yet plainly to be seen. This, with the deserted houses and the long stretch of beach, with no living thing thereon, made the place as desolate a picture as we could wish.

Today the loneliness seemed peculiarly fitting. Sea and land and sky wore their most forbidding aspect. The leaden clouds looked sullenly down upon the raging waters, which tossing and tumbling below, finally spent themselves in idle fury upon the lonely land. Two or three gulls wheeling about, high in the air one minute, then dipping down as if they would touch the crests of the wild waves in wanton sport, showed their defiance of wind and water. A solitary duck came into view, apparently from nowhere, and then flew swiftly across the marshes as if in a hurry to find a more congenial spot.

I walked out on the sands and looked up and down the shore and out over the wild waste of waters.

Here where in Summer hundreds of pleasure seekers are wont to gather and frolic with the wrestling waves, all is lonely and deserted.

No childish hands build houses of sand for the waves to wash away; no lovers walk the beach, or sit at night and watch the yellow moon rise up out of the tossing sea.

The wildness and grandeur of the scene are, however, accentuated by the loneliness, and those who are willing to undergo a little discomfort are well repaid. To walk up the beach in the teeth of a stiff easterly wind in February is no easy matter, but it makes the blood warm and one feel a sort of exultation at defying the elements thus.

It was nice, however, after this brisk walk to drop into a cosy room and fortified with a bottle of beer and some roasted oysters, reflect on the glories and wonders of nature. After a pleasant lunch, a clear and a pleasant lunch, a cigar, and a warm ride back to town brought to an end a February afternoon at the seashore. There are worse things that I know of than a visit to Wrightsville Beach, even in Winter.

—Salisbury, March 2.—For more than a week detectives have been working on a clue to locate a reported shortage of about one hundred carloads of coal at Spencer. A statement from the officials has not been obtainable concerning the matter which is surrounded by mystery. Crookedness on the part of some of the employees is said to exist but the detectives have been unable to place the guilt upon any man. It is stated that the coal was shipped here but the disposition of it is unaccountable.

I kept this treatment up for a few weeks when he was perfectly well. He has worked steadily since at carpenter work. Dr. King's New Discovery saved his life." ON SMALL SAVINGS

"Industry and Frugality Lead to Wealth"—Acquire the Saving Habit and Abandon the Idea That Rent is Cheaper.

There is no truer saying than "Industry and frugality lead to wealth," says the Columbia State. It may not be great wealth in the case of the person working for a small salary, but the saving habit once begun, the amalgamated accumulations increase surprisingly and pleasingly, says an exchange. With a determination so to do, something may be saved from an income, however small. Begin the practice now, and you will marvel at results if the habit is continued. The first outlay of such savings should be in procuring a home of your own, care being taken in its selection as to locality, looking to a natural increase in value as time goes on. The safest and surest aid to such a possession is some properly conducted building and loan association. With his home anchorage and nucleus one feels stronger, more confident, more cheerful, and is possessed with an intensified desire to build greater, to add to. Aside from the savings accumulated by depositing a portion of your salary with your building and loan association, made still easier by virtue of having no rent to pay when you have advanced thus far, every little improvement to your home, whether by labor or other means, not only adds to its value, but contributes to your personal comfort and respectability as well. Every one is naturally elevated in his own estimation and certainly in that of his fellow citizens by being the possessor of a spot of land and a shelter for himself and family. You are here safe from the caprice of landlord and where you may surround yourself with not only conveniences, but by ornamentation as your means increase, time advances and your tastes dictate—for, like a photograph, the home individualizes the owner.

Disabuse your mind at once of any stability to the argument that it is cheaper in a money sense to rent than own your home. Such a condition can only arise from the grossest ignorance or carelessness in the selection of your lot and the construction of your house Our advice is that you begin today to secure a home for yourself and family. Unnecessary delay in accomplishing a good purpose robs final victory of much of its sweets.

"Many a man who has perhaps stinted himself in the actual necessities of life to keep up his building and loan association payments," said a leading building and loan man, "is happy today, or soon will be, in the possession of a comfortable sum in cash or a canceled mortgage. These men, too, are, as a rule the sort that makes good citizens. They joined the building and loan associations after the numerous savings bank crashes of a few years ago, and though there has since been nothing to indicate a repetition of those unfortunate affairs, they have remained in the co-operative organizations. There have been times when they were short of money, but if for that reason anything had to be neglected or left undone it was not the share dues in the building and loan associations. Now they are reaping their reward. In one way or another their homes are becoming theirs, free and clear of incumbrance. If they are not already taxpayers on realty by having erected or purchased a house through their respective associations, they are now being placed in that position. They are men who have taken an interest in the welfare of the association, who have watched real estate and financial matters as well as they could, and who have become interested in and have watched the affairs of the city. They are of a saving and thrifty class, and have grown more so each year through their contnued connection with building and loan affairs, and this, combined with intelligence, makes them, as I said before, the good citizens of the community."

OLD AGE

How to Make It Grow and Double Up If Carefully Used.

(New York Evening World.)

According to the annual report of the New York savings banks the number of depositors is now 2,753,295, and the total of their deposits is over $1,400,000,000 an amoun,t greater than the bonded debt of the United States.

These depositors, who outnumber the inhabitants of Manhattan Island, are to be commended for their wisdom. If all men of small means were to follow their example, the community as a whole would be much better off. There was not one savings bank failure in the past year. There is not a single savings bank now whose report is not creditable to its management and whose solvency is not beyond question.

In these days of get-rich-quick schemes, of mining stocks, of speculation in bucket-shops, poolrooms, on the curb and in the stock exchange, it is most timely to turn to the savings banks and to point out the superiority to every man of small earnings and limited means of depositing a definite surplus regularly at interest.

For a rich man to speculate is one thing. He can afford to lose some money. He has time for personal investigation of the risk and he has the power to enforce his legal rights. He may win or he may lose, but in either case the transfer of wealth is not a vital matter.

To all the men who work for wages or on salaries their only hope for a peaceful old age and for a life free from racking money cares is to provide beforehand for the future. They should take no risk. When they speculate they stake their family's future and their own peace of mind against a few dollars. Even were the chances equal—and in the case of a small man the odds are always against him—the risk which he takes is vastly disproportionate to any possible gain.

Few men ever heard of progressive compound interest and still fewer know what it does. One dollar deposited in a savings bank which pays 4 per cent will amount to $2.19 in twenty years. This is simple compound interest. But how many men know that if they deposit $1 every year, the value in twenty years will not be $2.19, but $30.97?

Any man or woman who is earning wages at all can save $1 a week. That money deposited in a savings bank for twenty years will amount to $1,612. A deposit of $5 a week will amount to over $8,000. The annual interest on this at 4 per cent would be $320.

Thus the man who deposits $5 a week in a savings bank can after twenty years draw out $6 a week and still leave to his wife and children at his death all the money that he deposited and more than half as much more. There is no paradox or catch in this It is a plain, simple mathematical statement of what any savings bank will do.

Every wife should read these figures and go over them for herself. They are accurate. The only necessity is to make the deposits regularly. If, instead of discontinuing the weekly deposits at twenty years, they are continued for ten years more, every dollar a week will have become $58.38 and the $52 a year will have become over $3,000. For every dollar which had been deposited two dollars a week can then be drawn out without impairing the principal, which has been doubled.

It takes time to make money this way, but the result is certain. There is no secret about it, no mystery, no allurement, no dazzling speculation. All that it requires is industry and pays better than any gold or copper mine, than any poolroom or bucket-shop.

depends upon the life-long study and experience of the men who direct this business, and who mix a fertilizer which "makes three (often a dozen) blades of grass grow, where only one grew before." The name of it is

Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer.

By its very liberal use, a week or two before, or at planting, as well as second application, multitudes of farmers in the South have "increased their yields per acre," and with the larger profits which these increased yields brought, paid off the mortgage on their farms. Don't be fooled by any dealer into buying a "cheap" substitute.

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unanimous About It.

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent tresses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies bite through the thin thatch on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes, to learn that Newbro's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

It is not so with Nunnally's Candy. Anticipate what you will as to sweetness, flavor, purity and daintiness, and you will not be disappointed.

A first taste will convince you that it is a delicious confection of exceptional excellence; while the variety is greater, and of a quality superior to any other high-grade candy.

The various church choirs of the city are making elaborate preparations for their Easter music. The St. James choir, which makes a special feature of the Easter music, is making unusual study to excel all former services. Nothing adds so much to the impressiveness of a service as good music, which makes the praise service a feature of the occasion.

It is thought that the beautiful window, to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. George Patterson, will be placed in St. John's Church by Ascension Day, which falls this year on Thursday, May 9th. The window, which is to be a memorial to Dr. Patterson, was designed by The Montague Castle London Company, of New York, and will be one of the prettiest in the city.

"When Knighthood Was In Flower" will be presented by a strong cast Thursday evening, to be followed on Friday night by "The Sign of the Cross," which will be beautifully staged. Rome, in the days of Nero, when sumptuous vice and profligate luxury ruled the emperor and his court, is the theme of many powerful novels, but Mr. Barrett was the first to re-produce on the stage the magnificent surroundings of the noble Pagans contrasted with the poverty and privations of the despised Christians. Scenically the production is said to be most complete and beautiful, and one of the largest productions on the road. The company is composed of twenty-five players of note.

The organ and song recital, to be given at the First Baptist Church tomorrow evening, by Mr. and Mrs. Wade R. Brown, is looked forward to by a great many, with pleasurable anticipations. BUFF ORPINGTONS.

(Communicated.)

The S. C. Buff Orpingtons are birds indeed worthy of praise, and they are fast becoming the most popular fowl of the day, as they combine to perfection quality, beauty and utility. They are of a beautiful golden buff in color, excellent size, shape and carriage, clear pinkish legs, rapid growers and extremely gentle, which makes them good sitters and unsurpassed as mothers.

William Cook & Sons, of England, originated this breed, combining the good qualities of Darkings, Hamburgs and Buff Cochins, taking forty years to attain their present standard. The breed became so popular that a plant was established in South Africa and during the last three years the demand in this country having become so strong, a third plant was established at Scotch Plains, N. J.

They are greatly valued for their laying qualities, being famed for Winter laying, as well as during other seasons of the year. The cockerels do not run with the flock until about ten months or one year old, thus insuring stronger chicks, which make quick broilers, unsurpassed in quality.

Five years ago there was scarcely an Orpington advertisement to be seen in the farm journals of the South.—Note the difference now in all of the leading farm journals concerning this breed—These speak for themselves.

I have had a limited experience with White Brahmas, Leghorns and Plymouth Rocks, and while according them the praise they deserve, have discarded them all for S. C. Buff Orpingtons, and prefer them to any fowls I have ever seen.

THE COTTON MARKET.

By Wire to The Morning Star.

New York, March 9.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 2 points, with trading rather quiet and sentiment divided between the large spinners', takings for the week and the disappointing cables. There were some vague rumors of disagreements between leading bulls, however, and with no bull support of consequence, the market sold off to a net decline of about 6 to 10 points during the early session. At this level there was a renewal of support and with some covering the market rallied 4 or 5 points from the lowest. Trading was less active than recently and seemed more largely professional.

Receipts at the ports today 38,901 bales against 23,473 last week and 19,319 last year. For the week 160,000 bales against 175,453 last week and 117,286 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans 5,886 bales against 6,519 last year and at Houston 7,694 bales against 2,693 last year.

Spot cotton closed steady; middling uplands 11.45; middling gulf 11.70; sales 50 bales.

DIXIE.

Above we present our readers with a likeness of a young friend, Mr. A. E. Peschau, who has recently returned to Wilmington, N. C., his home, and will hustle among the growers this season as a representative of H. B. Williams, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., and J. H. Bahrenburg, Bro. & Co., of New York, two well known commission houses. Mr. Peschau, better known as "Dixie," among a wide circle of friends and business acquaintances in the North, has opened offices in the Masonic Temple, Wilmington, N. C., and although he is a busy man these days, getting matters into shape forthe season, he finds plenty of time to shake the hand of any of these numerous friends, who drop in from time to time to welcome him back to his old home. When seen by a reporter this week he was in his usual cheerful spirits, either listening or talking. "Yes, I am back in Wilmingtin permanently, I hope," he replied in answer to a question asked him, "I have been in the North a number of years now; I am glad to get back. The progress made by this section in the past five years is phenomenal, and the trucking section of East Carolina is about as well known in the North today as it is at home." This paper joins the many friends of Mr. Peschau in welcoming him home, and wishes him all success in his chosen line. If a combination of integrity, energy, ability, experience in a representative, with two of the best commission houses in the country to back him means anything, he is bound to succed. He understands the workings of commission men thoroughly, and he, likewise, understands the needs of the shipper. The houses he represents stand the very first in the business. We commend him to our friends. His advice as to the best times for and the best ways of shipping will be found worth listening to.—Carolina Fruit and Truckers Journal, Feb. 25, 1907.

LOVES EVELYN MORE THAN EVER

Harry Thaw Declares He Will be Separated From His Wife.

FAMILY IS NOT ESTRANGED

District Attorney Jerome Preparing for Monday Morning's Onslaught. Will Spare No Effort to Discredit Mrs. Thaw.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, March 9.—Harry K. Thaw issued the following statement today through his counsel, Daniel O'Reilly:

"I wish to deny as emphatically as possible the published report that my sister, the Countess of Yarmouth, is desirous of bringing about a separation between my wife and me at the conclusion of the trial. Perfect harmony exists between my wife, my sister and myself, as it did between all the members of my family. Such a thing as a separation has never been and never will be considered by me or any of my relatives.

"The Countess of Yarmouth is very friendly with Mrs. H. K. Thaw, and holds her in the highest esteem.

"As for myself, my love for my wife is greater than it ever was before, if that is possible. I hope that this denial from me will forever set at rest the absurd story of a possible estrangement.

"It is peculiarly regrettable to Mrs. Thaw and myself that such a story should have emanated from the source it did."

With the real work of the prosecution still ahead of him, District Attorney Jerome spent many busy hours today preparing for the State's case in rebuttal, which will begin Monday morning with the resumption of the trial of Harry Thaw before Justice Fitzgerald. Most of the day the District Attorney was closeted with nine alienists, six new experts having been summoned into consultation with Doctors Flint, McDonald and Maben, who have been present throughout the trial in the interest of the prosecution. Mr. Jerome refused to disclose the identity of the new members of his force of alienists. Their advent into the case, it was said, was for the purpose of assisting him in preparing hypothetical questions which he will put to the experts when they go on the witness stand.

It is currently reported today that Mr. Jerome had irrevocably decided to push the case to a conclusion, and not turn it over to a commission. All the members of the attorney's staff are sanguine that the chief will be able to throw sufficient doubt upon Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's story to, at least, tend to discredit her in the eyes of the jury, and they further declare that Mr. Jerome hopes to have a preponderance of expert testimony showing that Thaw acted as a sane man when he shot and killed Stanford White, and has continued to act as a san person ever since that time. The case from today's development, promises to resolve itself at last into a battle of experts, and this means that there is absolutely no way of predicting when the end will come. If Mr. Jerome only calls three of his nine experts to the stand—it is more than likely that he will call five—it means a series of interminable cross-examination by Delphin M. Delmas, the leading counsel for the defense. Mr. Delmas thus will be given an opportunity to match his medical knowledge against the very thorough understanding of the subject displayed by Mr. Jerome.

FOUR THOUSAND SHEEP KILLED.

Cattle and Sheep Men in Wyoming Still at War.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Sheridan, Wyo., March 9.—Northern Wyoming is again threatened with a range war between the cattle and sheep men. Closely following on the attack on the Wisner camp last week, in which four hundred head of sheep were killed and the camp burned, comes the report of a greater outrage in Owl Creek county.

The Hugh Dickey sheep camp was attacked by a band of twelve masked men, supposed to be in the employ of the cattlemen. The raiders drove off the sheep herders with threats of shooting, fired the camp outfit and then began shooting sheep. Out of a total 8,000 sheep in the band, 4,000 have disappeared, supposed to have all been killed.

The cattlemen have marked out a "dead line," and the Dickey sheep were one mile over the dead line. The war will probably spread to other camps and further trouble occur.

WOMAN SHOT MAN DEAD

Terrible Tragedy in Savannah Early Last Night.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Savannah, Ga., March 9.—W. P. Harrell, of Dodge county, was shot and instantly killed tonight about 7 o'clock by Mrs. Sallie Freeney. The killing grew out of a dispute about rent, Mr. Harrell owning the house in which Mrs. Freeney lived. He had gone there for the purpose of collecting the rent and upon being refused payment he told Mrs. Freeney that he would have her put out, whereupon she drew a pistol and shot Harrell twice through the heart and brain. Mrs. Freeney was arrested. Mr. Harrell leaves a wife and several children.

FORGED NOTES FOR THOUSANDS

Mysterious Suicide of Millionaire Preston of Lew York Accounted For.

HE DRANK PRUSSIC ACID

Left Note Saying He Had Been Insane A Long Time—Forger Committed Suicide Rather Than Face Exposure.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

New York, March 9.—That Leonidas M. Preston, secretary and manager of the Timken Roller Company, had forged the name of E. A. Hewett, one of the members of that company, to notes aggregating $57,000 to $100,000, was the substance of a statement made to the coroner today by James A. Shea, counsel for Mrs. Preston.

Preston died very suddenly in his rooms in the Hotel Chamberland last Thursday after drinking prussic acid, while the three members of the company were awaiting to question him about the affairs of the company.

It was discovered today that Preston left a note saying that he had been insane for some time. The statement by Mr. Shea was made at a coroner's inquest into the cause of Preston's death. Mr. Shea testified that E. R. Hewitt, son of the late Mayor Hewitt, has informed him that Preston's books showed the forgeries but the investigation was not yte complete. One of the alleged forged notes was for $5,000, and was due on the day of Preston's death. Another was for $50,000, and was due on April 1, next. In a card case in a pocket of Mr. Preston's clothing Mr. Shea found the following message, scribbled in lead pencil on a business card:

"In case of death or serious accident to me notify my wife, Mrs. L. M. Preston, care of Hotel Cumberland, New York; my mother, Mrs. C. C. Preston, 218 Reaves Street, Tyler, Texas; Edward M. Preston, College Station, Tex.; Mrs. J. O. Matthews, care of Rice, Stix & Co., St. Louis; E. W. B. Timken, Canton, O. My wife's wishes to be considered first in all things.

"I realize that I am, and have been, for some time, insane. I have lost my mind, my power to grasp things, my memory. I have lost everything except my firm faith in God and his son, Jesus Christ. I am in His hands, I leave it all to Him. He has been my refuge and strength and will never forsake me.

Four Year Old Child of Delaware Doctor Probably in New York.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Dover, Del., March 9.—John Hart, who was arrested last night and taken to New Castle in connection with the disappearance of the four year old son of Dr. Horace N. Marvin, of Kitt's Hammock, near here, was today released from custody. Hart is a fisherman, and has been cruising all Winter in the vicinity of Murderkill river. His boat was seen near the place where the boy was last seen on Monday, the day the latter disappeared. He denied all knowledge of the child, of whose disappearance, he says, he was not made aware until he was halted at New Castle. Dr. Marvin said today he was satisfied that the boy has kidnapped by river pirates and does not hesitate to say that he believes a woman has assisted in the abduction.

New York, March 9.—The police of this city obtained a clue today that may lead to the recovery of four year old Horace Marvin, Jr., who disappeared from his father's home at Kitt's Hammock, Del., last Monday. The New York authorities are being aided in the search by Dr. Harvey W. Marvin, of Delaware, a half-brother of the missing boy.

A man whose identity has not been revealed told the police that while crossing the Fort Lee ferry on Monday, last, he says a man and a woman accompanied by a boy who tallied with the description of young Marvin. According to the informan the lad was crying "I want to go back home," and struggled with the woman when she tried to quiet him. The informant told the police that he questioned the woman about the boy and that she replied hat the child was her own. He said he was suspicious, however, and when the couple left the ferry with the child he followed them some distance and saw them board a southbound trolley car at Broadway and 130th street.

Death of Strange Preacher Who Proclaimed That He Was Elijah.

BITTER WORDS ON DEATH BED

While Dying He Denounced People With His Old-Time Vigor and Ordered the Guards to Throw Out Disturbers.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Chicago, March 9.—John Alexander Dowie died at 7:40 this morning at Shiloh House, Zion City. There were present with him when he died only Judge J. N. Barnes and two personal attendants. It had been Dowie's custom, Summer and Winter, to hold religious services every Sunday afternoon in the parlor of Shiloh house. About 350 of his original fellowers remained faithful and attended these services. Dowie always wore his apostolic robes, and made a characteristic address. Five weeks ago these meetings ceased, and Dowie appeared no longer in public. The Sunday meetings, however, was still held by his adherents.

Since that time Dowie had gradually been falling. Friday afternoon, however, there was no indications of approaching death. He received a few followers, and prayed for some people. His condition seemed to be about the same as for the last two or three weeks. One of the attendants remained with him until midnight and was relieved by the other attendant. Shortly before 1 o'clock this morning, Dowie became delirious and his talk was the same as at a religious meeting in the days of his prime.

He denounced people with the old time vigor, ordered the guards to throw out disturbers, and acted just as he had on so many previous occasions. He gradually became weaker and weaker, and the attendant telephoned for Judge Barnes, who reached Shiloh House at 7 A. M. Forty minutes later Dowie died.

It has been decided that the interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetry, not far from Zion City. The date of the funeral has not been determined.

Wilbur G. Voliva, the head of the faction opposing Dowie in Zion City, today declined to make any statement regarding the influence of the death of Dowie on the future of the church, or to discuss his death in any manner.

John Alexander Dowie was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, May 25, 1847. In 1860 his parents removed to Adelaidem, Australia, where for seven years the youth was clerk in a business house. Here Dowie developed the commercial instinct that served him so well later in life. He saved enough money during this period to return to Edinburgh at the age of 20 to take a five years' course in theology and the arts. He became a master of Greek and Hebrew, and cultivated a literary taste that resulted in after years in a library of 10,000 volumes, with which he was thoroughly familiar.

Six years of denomination activity wearied Dowie, who longed for a wide field of operation. He forsook his church and in 1878 went to Melbourne, where he set up a Free Christian Tabernacle—the first of its kind—and organized a divine healing association, which, afterwards became international in character. He became president of this association, and gained fame by going out into the country during the prevalence of putrid fever and apparently effecting many cures by prayer and the laying on of hands.

Dowie landed in San Francisco in 1888. Two years of wandering along the California coast followed and then in 1890, the "Doctor," his wife, his son, Alexander John Gladstone Dowie, and his daughter Esther, arrived in Chicago, which was to be the theatre for his future activities.

The Christian Catholic Church in Zion City, the outgrowth of the original international divine healing association, was formally organized in February, 1896, Dowie becoming general overseer; four years afterwards Dowie, before a large audience in the auditorium theatre, announced that he was Elijah, the Restorer, spoken of in Malachi. This assumption of a biblical personality created even more of a sensation among his followers than any of the worldly successes of the "Prophet."

In August, 1901, the first building was erected in Zion City, which a year later had a population of 10,000. In December, 1903, Zion City was placed under control of a federal receivership, which was dissolved a week later on Dowie's presentation of ability to pay dollar for dollar for all indebtedness. At that time Dowie estimated the value of his holdings in Zion City, at $25,000,000, since then the values of the lace factories, the other industries and holding at Zion City are believed to have increased to $28,000,000.

About a year ago Dowie appointed Wilbur Glen Voliva his first lieutenant and general overseer of the church. A month after Voliva took charge in Zion City he, by a power of attorney vested in him by Dowie, had all the property belonging to the church transferred from Dowie to Overseer Granger, charging extravagance and gross mismanagement by Dowie. At the time the transfer was made, Voliva called all the Zionists to the tabernacle in Zion City, and denounced Dowie. With the exception of less than 200 of Dowie's former followers, all the inhabitants of Zion chose Voliva as their future leader, and word was sent to Dowie in Mexico that he had been deposed.

THE "HOLY HOUSE."

Legend of the Home of Mary and the Saviour.

Let me give the main outlines of the legend. At Nazareth was preserved with pious care the house of Our Lady. The dwelling place in which she received the gracious message of the incarnation, the lowly home which sheltered the holy family for so many years, was a very precious sanctuary. On May 10, 1291, a month after the taking of Tripoli and Ptolemais, this holy house was carried by the hands of angels from Nazareth to a place in Dalmatia between Fiume and Tersatz on the Adriatic shore.

It was a one roomed edifice, built of red square stones, fastened with cement, and bore proof of age and oriental design. It stood without any foundations and had a wooden decorated ceiling. The walls were covered with frescoes; there were a door and a narrow window; inside were an altar of stone, an ancient crucifix, a small cupboard, containing a few vessels of common use; a chimney and hearth, above which was a cedar statue of Our Lady with the Holy Child in her arms. The pastor of the place learned in a vision that the building was the house of Our Lady, the stone altar that at which St. Peter celebrated mass and the statue the work of St. Luke the Evangelist. In proof of the vision he was cured of a serious illness. A deputation of four responsible persons forthwith were sent to Nazareth to investigate the mystery, and they found that the house was no longer to be found.

Measurement and other means taken proved that the house that had suddenly appeared in Dalmatia was indeed none other than that which had as suddenly left Palestine. Three years after, on Dec. 10, 1294, the holy house again disappeard and under the pontificate of Celestine V. came to Recanati, a little town in the march of Ancona, when it fixed itself in a laurel grove belonging to a pious lady called Loreto. It was discovered by some shepherds and soon became recognized and was henceforth a much frequented place of pilgrimage. Eight months afterward the house removed to a small hill, three miles from Recanati, to land belonging to two brothers, who, however, fell out shortly afterward over the division of wealth which began to flow to the new shrine.

To save strife between the brothers the house was suddenly lifted once more and this time settled down finally in the midst of the public way, which had to be diverted in consequence. Here, too, in the course of time a chapel was built, which gave way in time to the present basilica. The famous pilgrimage of Loreto goes on today. Popes, kings and princes have visited this shrine and left great gifts. Later on a festival with liturgical rites was instituted, and in time the feast of the translation of the holy house was extended to many countries. —Fortnightly Review.

Letters and Pounds.

I believe the stolidity of the English character and its implicit acceptance of authority are due in a large measure to the fact that long before it leaves the spelling class it is ready to believe anything. And this unquestioning attitude of mind is only rendered the more hopeless when it comes to learn that in one case twelve ounces make a pound, in another case it requires sixteen. Indeed, if we had set ourselves deliberately to stamp out rational instincts and the habit of logical and thoughtful inquiry in the child mind, we probably could not have devised two more fiendish instruments than our scheme of spelling on the one hand and of weights and measures on the other.—London Mail.

Unstamped Letters In England.

Many people are unaware of the fact that the sender of an unstamped letter can be proceeded against for the postage. The moment a person posts an unpaid letter he becomes a debtor to the postoffice. If it is refused by the addressee the sender is liable for the postage. An enormous number of unstamped letters are posted every year. No record is kept of the exact number. Many large firms give instructions at the postoffice that unstamped letters are not to be delivered to them. They are then returned to the senders, and in the case of frequent offenders legal steps are taken.—London Lady.

Her Simplicity.

A silly little lady had a husband, a lover of gayety, who was inclined to neglect his wife. This lady while spending the winter in Devonshire said one day at the country postoffice:

"Dear me, what a silly mistake you postoffice people have made."

"How, madam?" asked the clerk.

"Why," she explained, with a titter, "here I have just got a letter from my husband, who is working hard in London, and the envelope is postmarked Monte Carlo."—London Queen.

The Sweet Girl's Way.

After a girl has worked for six months to get a young man, lying awake nights to think up new schemes of fascination, it is amazing to witness the coolness with which she can look up into his eyes after he has finally proposed and murmur tenderly, "You hypnotist!"—Somerville Journal.

The Burglar's Jimmy.

Why does the burglar call the tool with which he opens windows and doors a "jimmy?" No one seems to be sure. Perhaps it is merely a pet name. The French burglar calls his jimmy "Frere Jacques," which is first cousin to "Jimmy."

In prosperity the proud man knows nobody; in adversity nobody knows him.—Duquoin Call.
